6. Read up on the subject:

Your public library will have many books on the subject, some tailored to your location. There are also many excellent web sites that can help you get started.

7. Have Fun!

Most importantly, have fun. Don't make gardening into more work than it needs to be. Your garden doesn't need to be perfect. It's great if you're able to achieve a substantial return on your investment, but it's also okay if you lose a little money.

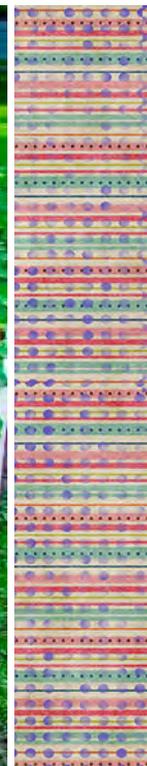

Learn how to make your garden productive and fun!

1. Plan in advance:

Decide what you'd like to grow. How much space can you devote to the project? How much time are you willing to spend? Answering these questions will help you to determine your priorities.

2. Start Small:

In order to enjoy your garden, you must be able to control it. Don't get too ambitious.

3. Chose productive plants:

Don't plant things your family won't eat. If space is limited, plant crops that take less space.

4. Share with others:

Share your extra produce with neighbors. If possible, share seeds and equipment as well.

5. Buy quality tools

When you buy tools, it pays to purchase quality. Remember: thrift and frugality are about obtaining value for your dollar — not just paying the cheapest price.
